The story of how Green 3 and ASPIRO became partners (as told by Jim Martin, Green 3 Partner):

We became aware of ASPIRO via news coverage of the scarves they produced for Barack Obama's inauguration. At that time we were looking for a contract sewer in the area and approached ASPIRO for the project. I was initially concerned regarding what the quality level would be. In less than 30 minutes of our first tour of the facility, my concerns were erased and I was overwhelmed by the emotions I was feeling. A mix of humility, compassion, and awe were blended with a myriad of other emotions too many to list. I knew at that point that not only was ASPIRO absolutely the proper partner from a business perspective, but that companies like ours had a responsibility to support this organization's efforts. Since that time ASPIRO has become our "go to" partner for any and all types of projects. We consciously develop products that suit their client's needs, as well as challenge them with projects that any other manufacturer would think twice about. Never once have we been disappointed. We look forward to not only continuing our relationship with ASPIRO, but growing it.
